The GREAT REFUSAL By MAXWELL GRAY

Author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland"

12mo. Ornamental Cloth, $1.50

This is the story of love given up for an ideal, of the struggle of a modern rich young man to do better than the rich young man in the Bible who refused to give up his riches to gain the kingdom of heaven, and "went away grieved" at his own refusal. It is a study of modern plutocracy. The young man learns by hard experience that one man cannot overcome the laziness of a nation and that economic laws are as immutable as the laws of health. But at the last he sails away to the coast of South Africa to found a modern Utopia, and takes with him the girl he really ought to marry.

A WORK OF IMMENSE IMPORTANCE

FUTURE LIFE

In Ancient Wisdom and Modern Science

By LOUIS ELBÉ

THIS is the authorized translation of the famous book which has been creating so wide a stir in scientific and religious circles throughout France, under the title "La Vie Future." It will be received with equal interest here, and will arouse very general discussion, as the subject is one which is engaging, not only scientists, but laymen, in ever-increasing numbers. This volume offers for the first time a complete presentation of all the available evidence hitherto available only in the most scattered and inaccessible forms. With great care and exactness M. Elbé has arranged a plain statement of the discoveries, theories, and ideas of the greatest investigators, together with his own illuminating views and comments, and a mass of authentic information regarding the beliefs of the primitive races.

There is a constantly-increasing demand for works in this line, and book-sellers will appreciate the reception which will be waiting for so great a book as this—probably the most important ever published.

THE BOOK THAT WON THE NOBEL PEACE PRIZE

"GROUND ARMS!"

A Romance of European War

By BERTHA VON SUTTNER

THE wide publicity given the Baroness von Suttner's "Die Waffen Nieder!" has made it necessary to bring out a re-issue of this admirable translation. It is needless to say that there will be everywhere an immediate desire to read the book which is supposed to have exerted the greatest influence in bringing about the "Hague Tribunal," and this new edition presents probably the best English form available.

A Laugh in Ev'ry Line
Double Trouble

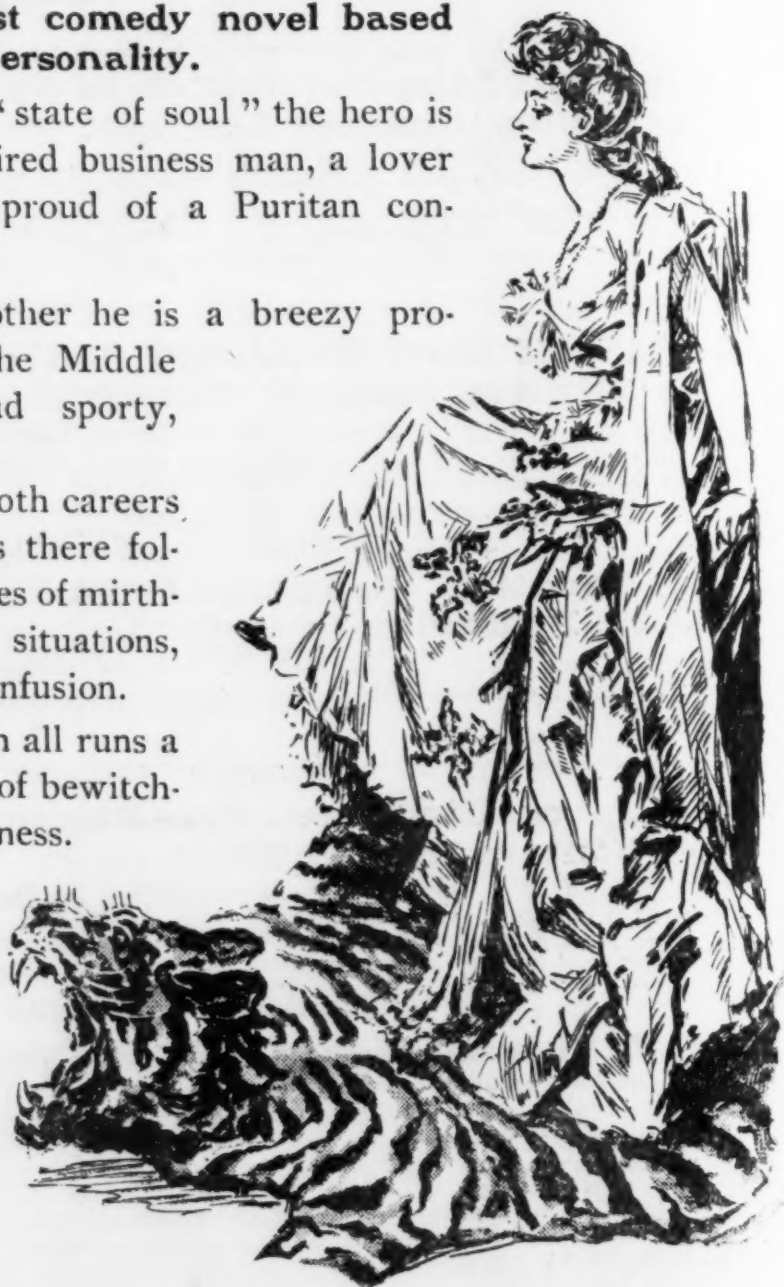

The first comedy novel based on dual personality.

In one "state of soul" the hero is a quiet retired business man, a lover of books, proud of a Puritan conscience.

In the other he is a breezy promoter of the Middle West, loud sporty, rakish.

When both careers cross paths there follows a series of mirth-making situations, farcical confusion.

Through all runs a love story of bewitching tenderness.

What WILL the Readers Say?

What the Reviewers SAY

"Romance lovers will do well to mark 'Barbara Winslow, Rebel' down on their lists."—N. Y. World.

"A frankly romantic story, buoyant, eventful, and in matters of love exactly what the heart could desire."—N. Y. Sun.

"Barbara is one of the first arrivals of the opening year on the romantic stage of fiction, and is an entrancing creature."—Boston Herald.

"'Barbara Winslow' should be one of the favorite books of the year, and one of the best sellers."—New Haven Journal-Courier.

"Here is Barbara Winslow, coquettish, fickle, light-hearted and gay, but daring in the face of danger and true as steel."—N. Y. Mail.

"The dialogue in this pleasing romance is notably sprightly and clever, the situations are interesting, and the action is rapid—a clever story of a fascinating heroine."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

What the Booksellers SAY

"I predict grand results."

"I believe the book will be one of the best sellers of the season."

"It impresses me as one of the best stories in a long time."

"The book is all right, and we will need more."

NOTES IN SEASON.

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY will shortly publish Eleanor Hoyt Brainerd's "In Vanity Fair," a book telling of the origin and exploitation of fashions in woman's dress, a field in which she is a recognized authority. Social phenomena of extraordinary kinds are at the foundation of fashion, and the book offers a revelation of human nature, vanity, extravagance, shrewdness and enterprise seldom studied against so fascinating a background. They have also just ready "The Invisible Bond," a novel by Eleanor Talbot Kinkead, a strong story of present day life in Kentucky, illustrated in color by C. Allan Gilbert.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish on the 15th inst. a new novel by Lilian Bell, entitled "Carolina Lee," the story of a fascinating American girl, born and educated in Paris, who at the beginning of the story rides on the top wave of success in New York society. A financial catastrophe leaves her without means excepting an old rundown plantation in Virginia, which she proceeds to rebuild, her efforts being crowned with surprising success. The book will have a frontispiece in color after an oil painting by Dora Wheeler Keith. They also announce under the title of "Stand Pat" a collection of the interesting humorous poker stories contributed to the New York Sun by David Curtis, the author of a technical book on the game of poker.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS begin their spring publications to-day with a volume of stories by Cy Warman, called "The Last Spike, and Other Railroad Stories." The book includes seventeen stories, including love stories, ghost stories, stories of adventure and heroism and of all kinds of life on trains and railroads dealing with conductors, trainmen, engineers and passengers. These are considered to be the best stories that Mr. Warman has ever written. They have also just ready the book which was awarded the Bross Prize, ($6000,) by the Lake Forest University in 1905, entitled "The Problem of the Old Testament." It is by Professor James Orr, and is said to be a remarkably clear and able work on this subject, intended for laymen as well as for scholars. The committee which made the award was composed of Professor Ladd, of Yale, Professor Ormond of Princeton, and Professor Wright, of Oberlin, and they unanimously agreed on this book as unquestionably the best of all submitted.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & COMPANY will publish on February 17 "Individuality and Immortality," an essay by Professor William Ostwald, of Leipzig, who has finished his course of lectures at Harvard University and is now giving a series at Columbia University, New York City, before returning to Germany. On the same date they will bring out the first work of fiction for this year, written by Miss Margaret Morse, a story of nature and two nature lovers, man and woman, of peculiar temperament and ideals and perfect affinity, which will be called "The Spirit of the Pines." The house is also printing the nineteenth edition of Clara Louise Burnham's "The Right Princess," the fifth of "Routine and Ideals," by Le Baron R. Briggs; the fourth edition of "A Third Century of Charades," by William Bellamy; a third edition of "The Ancient Grudge," by Arthur Stanwood Pier; and second editions of Morton Dexter's "The England and Holland of the Pilgrims;" of William Vaughan Moody's "The Fire Bringer;" and of Albert H. Tolman's "The Views About Hamlet."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

While this volume of the "American Art Annual" conforms in its general plan to previous issues, the reports of paintings sold at auction have been made easier for reference by a single classification under the name of the artist, arranged alphabetically, of all paintings sold at public auction for $100, and over, since October, 1903. Special attention is called to the fact that dates of birth and death and the nationality of artists are given in this list. The biographical directory of painters, sculptors and illustrators is followed by a list of the sculptors and one of the illustrators. The directory of writers and lecturers on art has a supplementary list of daily newspapers that devote space to art matters. Besides there are other valuable features such as lists of art books and art magazines published in 1905-6; Obituaries; Scholarships and prizes; Exhibitions; Reports of art galleries and societies, etc. Illustrated with reproductions of twenty page pictures of recent art works or paintings.

A beautiful English country place is the scene of Philip Home's courtship of Madge Ellington. Philip is rich, cultured and in every way desirable as a husband, but Madge does not love him. Lady Ellington, her worldly mother, persuades her, however, to accept him. An artist friend of Philip is painting her portrait, and just on the eve of her marriage she discovers that they love each other. Philip is thrown over and the tragedy of the book occurs. There is a third man in the story—Tom Merivale—who is a strange character. He lives outdoors and can make himself understood by a bird or a beast.

Dr. Huntington, rector of Grace Church, New York, says: "The author has been singularly wise in his choice of a method. It is the method Coleridge employed in his 'Aids to reflection,' and the Hare brothers in their 'Guesses at truth'—the method of aphorism. Instead of formal chapters, after the conventional fashion, we have a logical succession of detached and semi-detached paragraphs, each one of which presents a truth which no one who desires to think deeply about prayer can afford to lose out of sight."

Dillon, Mrs. Mary. In old Bellaire; with il. by C. M. Relyea. N. Y., Century Co., 1906. [Ja.] c. 7+363 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Bellaire is a small college and barracks town in southern Pennsylvania where feeling ran high in the days previous to the Civil War because of the presence of many Southern students. Here comes Eunice Harlowe, a demure Quaker-like New England school teacher, and as a member of the family of the college president she is brought in contact with the gay, careless social life of the town. Naturally a love story evolves and the staunch little Northerner finds she has to choose between patriotism and the love of a man of whom her principles do not approve. The war tries out the dress from the souls of all.

Further on he attempts to reveal and demonstrate beyond all question the origin of the negro; to trace his history from the beginning to the present, and to state what he believes to be the true solution of the "race problem." A sketch is given of Prof. Eastman's life by J. M. McLeod.

While the scene of this novel is New York City and several of the characters are society people, it is not a society novel. It is rather a story of temperaments than of incident, and interest centering in a half dozen mismatched men and women, their loves, infidelities and jealousies. The chief woman character is a girl from Virginia who has published a volume of poems. She is loved by four men, and it is her fate at first to choose the least worthy. Old-fashioned New York around Gramercy Park has been cleverly studied and there is a glimpse of the literary world.

The story is largely told by Colonel Basil Annesley, an English officer on leave of absence. He seems to be the only passenger on the Engadine Express from Calais to Basle, until on the eve of departure, a lady, with her maid and baby come on board. This is the beginning of an ingenious story, in which a baby is being spirited away by a divorced woman from her late husband. Detectives follow in a pursuit through Europe. Twin sisters, exactly alike, add to the mystification. Author of "The queen's shilling" and other novels.

Suspicion is thrown on the dead man's secretary, whom he has named as heir, and on his agent-Scotland Yard detectives, and an English barrister, an American financier, and a physician who is an expert in poison effects, are drawn into the case, which develops many surprises, not the least of which is the final confession of the murderer. A love story helps along the plot.

A history of the inception and development of the Pre-Raphaelite school of painting of which William Holman Hunt was one of the leaders. The movement belonged to the last half of the past century, and was an attempt to return to nature, or truth in art. Besides Mr. Hunt, Rossetti, Ford Madox Brown, Millais and other English artists who afterwards became famous, were members of the brotherhood. The work is rich in many interests. It not only goes into the motives and ambitions that inspired the Pre-Raphaelites but is full of details and anecdotes which describe and illustrate numerous interesting personalities; both artists and literary people were included in the author's acquaintance, and he tells much that one is glad to know about Tennyson, Thackeray, Dickens, Gladstone and others equally noted.

We are already indebted to Mr. Lea for "A history of the Inquisition of the Middle Ages" (3 v.) and other carefully written works along the same lines. In the present work he traces the character and career of an institution which exercised no small influence on the fate of Spain and indirectly upon the civilized world. He also includes a brief sketch of the Portuguese Inquisition, which earned a reputation even more sinister than its Spanish prototype. The work opens with the accession of Ferdinand and Isabella, and is divided into two books. Book 1, "Origin and establishment" has chapters on: The Castilian monarchy; The Jews and the Moors; The Jews and the Conversos; Establishment of the Inquisition; The Kingdoms of Aragon. Book 2, "Relations with the state," contains chapters on: Relations with the crown; Supereminence; Privileges and exemptions; Conflicting jurisdictions; Popular hostility.

McCady, Rev. E: Apostolic succession and the problem of unity; [introd. by Theodore D. Bratton.] Sewanee, Tenn., University Press, 1905. c. 8+163 p. D. cl., $1.10.

Discussion of the doctrine of Apostolic succession as held by the Roman Catholic and Greek churches as well as by many members of the English and Protestant Episcopal churches. The author thinks it can be only accepted as a plausible theory and can never be demonstrated as an incontestable fact. It is this theory which is the real bar to Christian unity in that it discriminates against the validity of the sacraments as administered by the Protestant bodies. The author also states arguments against the proposed change of name of the Protestant Episcopal church to the American Catholic church.

Author is Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge, and literary editor of the London Daily News. The essays estimate the forces which are making for change throughout the world but especially in the England of the last generation. A reaction has set in from the radical views of the last few decades. The author criticizes literature and politics, their possibilities and short-comings and gives short sketches of the influence of Henley, Shorthouse, Henry Sidgwick, George Gissing, Disraeli, Gladstone, the great religious teachers (Temple, Westcott, Creighton, Dolling), Shaw, Wells, Maeterlinck, etc. It is a book to make earnest men think. Merejkowski, Dmitri. Peter and Alexis: the romance of Peter the Great; sole authorized tr. from the Russian. N. Y., Putnam, 1906. c. 4-556 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Completes the author's trilogy—"Christ and Anti-Christ," of which the former volumes were "The death of the gods" and "The romance of Leonardo da Vinci." The three novels may be read separately, being connected only by a strong underlying idea. Through many historical episodes, often brutal and revolting, a psychological study is made of the Romanoff family. Peter, though called the Great, is shown as a man of violent temper, self-indulgent and cruel: his unfortunate son Alexis is compared to the present Tsar Nicholas. It is a sketch, vivid and true, of classes and conditions, of court and society, of peasants and wild religious beliefs in Russia at the beginning of the eighteenth century.

author's "untouched" photographs taken by day and night. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1906. c. 30+782 p. por. O. cl., *$3.80 net.

Mr. Schillings's many journeys to East Africa to study the country and its beasts and birds are here recorded. He hunted the elephant, the rhinoceros, hippopotamus, buffaloes and crocodiles, giraffes, zebras, lions and leopards, and other equally fear-inspiring creatures. To photograph them in their night retreats, he resorted to the flashlight with remarkable success, securing a series of pictures such as has never before been seen. His remarkable insight into animal life and sympathy with all wild creatures make his studies of their habits of exceptional value. The beauty of the scenery and the life of the natives are also carefully presented.

Scenes are laid in Poland just before the Turkish invasion in 1682 and 1683. The love story centers in a Polish girl of noble birth, and involves five fighting, drinking nobles of unlimited courage and sensitive honor. There are quarrels and duels; an attempted kidnapping; howling wolves and blood-thirsty bandits, all the characters and action serving to explain those qualities, national and individual, which have proved the strength and weakness of Poland.

The third volume of the author's discussion of psychology, the other volumes having dealt with intellect (psychology and psychosis) and the will and its world. These books form part of a series called "The new system of thought" that has successively taken up The history of philosophy, Institutions, and Aesthetic. The Prolegomena, or introduction to psychology fills about 130 pages, after which comes the examination of feeling subdivided as Elemental, Finite and Absolute. The author believes that psychology is in a fair way to become the universal science, uniting and psychically re-creating all the other sciences.

An argument against the theory of the origin of man as set forth by Darwin, and supported by Tyn-dal, Huxley, Spencer, Haeckel and others. The author's conclusions are that man is a recent comer on earth, and that the evidence is overwhelming that he appeared at the closing of the last catastrophe to the world within ten thousand years of this time. when all living things then on the earth were destroyed. That life upon the earth was again reinstated by contact with the sun's heat, with the dense vapors enveloping the earth, etc. The 200 copies printed are intended for free distribution among personal friends, to the public libraries, the priests, preachers and scientists.

Taylor, W. Purves. Practical cement testing. N. Y., Myron C. Clark Publishing Co., 1906. c. '05. 8+320 p. O. cl., $3 net.

Designed primarily for the use of the student, the novice, and the practical operator in conducting actual routine tests of cement to determine its suitability for purposes of construction, but both the expert and the engineer who directs this work may also find useful information. The general scope of the book covers a description of the properties of cement, the objects of the various tests, the methods of conducting them, the common influences and errors that are most likely to affect the determinations, and the practical interpretation of the results which are finally obtained. No attempt has been made to consider the practical use of cement and concrete except in so far as the conditions of actual work regulate the use of the various tests, while the data given are also applicable more to the conduct of tests than to the final use of the material.—Preface.

Tennyson, Alfred, Lord. In memoriam: annotated by the author. N. Y., Macmillan, 1906. [Ja10.] c. 265 p. 16°, cl., $1 net.

Important edition, because it contains author's notes now published for the first time. Introduction by the present Lord Tennyson giving views of the poem by Gladstone, Westcott and Henry Sidgwick and throwing much light on the religious views of Tennyson. Throws new light on some of the oft discussed intricate meanings of a poem widely considered the greatest of the nineteenth century.

Tennyson, Alfred Tennyson, (Lord.) Tennyson's Gareth and Lynette, Lancelot and Elaine, The passing of Arthur; ed., with introd. and notes, by Katharine Lee Bates. Bost., Sibley & Co., [1905.] c. 4+303 p. por. T. (Students' ser. of English classics, Handy ed.) cl., 25 c.

Tracy, L: Karl Grier: the strange story of a man with a sixth sense. N. Y., E: J. Clode, 1906. 6+323 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Karl Grier had many gifts, among them the gift of understanding the crude language of nomads and that of animals—but above all was what was called his "sixth sense"; by this he was enabled, after going into a trance, to see into far distant countries, and to describe the actions and appearance of people he had never met, even retailing their conversations. He is made use of by his friends and helps them to unravel many mysteries, and throw light on many dark deeds. There is a love story interwoven.

"The four books or chapters under consideration deal with years fraught with interest for the student and lover of history. Full details are given of the Prince Regent's negotiations with the Whigs in 1809 and 1812, and a rapid sketch of the principal events and incidents of the last decade of the reign of George III. Lord Holland, however, distinctly states that the aim and objects of his labours were to record any incidents, anecdotes, or intrigues which were not generally known at the time, and which were unlikely to be found in the recognized histories, periodicals, or journals."—Editor's Preface. At the commencement of each chapter has been placed a short sketch of the history of the period in question.

Ward, A. B. The sage brush parson. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1906. [Ja.] 4+390 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The sage-brush parson is a young Englishman, an itinerant Methodist preacher, who suddenly finds himself in a Nevada mining town. His dual nature made up of religious fervor and human passion makes it impossible for him to strike a balance between his idiosyncrasies. He falls in love with a wealthy widow, and later is convicted of the murder of his wife and child who have followed him from England to induce him to return. The story has a happy conclusion, however.

Centers in the theft and subsequent appearances and disappearances of some incriminating papers having to do with a small European Kingdom of Asturia, ruled by a dissipated king and his noble consort. Most of the action takes place in London during three or four days and involves an English diplomatist, a queen's messenger, Asturian officers and Russian spies and adventurers who are striving to bring Asturia under Russian control. Two girls amazingly alike play important parts in a plot full of intrigue and thrilling situations.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ATLANTA, GA.—William C. Warfield has succeeded L. H. Putney as manager of the Southern branch of the Macmillan Company.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—The business founded in 1850 by Edwin Dresser & Co., and so long and favorably known as the Cambridgeport Diary Company, has been legally changed to The Standard Diary Company. The management remains as heretofore—Edwin Dresser, president and general manager; Albert S. Parsons, treasurer; J. Augustine Wade, superintendent, and Sumner Dresser, trade representative.

CINCINNATI, O.—The Queen City Book Company has leased the store at the corner of Vine and Gano Streets.

CLEVELAND, O.—H. F. Babbitt has sold his entire interest in the Babbitt & Crummel Company to George B. Rogers, who will immediately assume an active interest in the business. The company will continue in the same location, 253 Euclid Avenue.

DULUTH, MINN.—The Chamberlain-Taylor Company has succeeded Chamberlain & Taylor, booksellers.

NEW YORK CITY.—The affairs of the United Educational Company will come up for examination before William H. Willis, referee in bankruptcy on February 9, at 80 Wall Street.

PERRY, OKLA.—J. C. Glaiser, bookseller, has been succeeded by H. P. Wetzel.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—R. S. Davis & Co., booksellers, who for years have been located on Fifth Avenue, will remove, on April 1, to the four-story building at 441 Wood Street, where they will have excellent facilities to display their fine stock of books, stationery, periodicals and toys.

PICK-UPS.

AN AUTHOR'S CONFESSION.

IN these days of publishers' confessions and their discussions of the relations of publisher and author, there is a special pertinency in Captain Harry Graham's humorous foreword to his publishers, (Fox, Duffield & Co.,) in his new volume of verse, "More Misrepresentative Men."

"My publishers, make no mistake,
You have in me an avis rara,
So write a princely cheque, and make
It payable to bearer;
I love you, as I said before,
But oh! I love your money more!"

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 3, 1906.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

RAILWAY TICKETS AND HOTELS.

THERE are all sorts of ways and means by which a commercial traveller may arrange for his transportation, transfer of baggage, etc., that differ in almost every State of the Union, and for which no lasting rule can be laid down. In the days gone by, a traveller was able to save considerable money if he knew a friendly scalper; but his chances through this channel are now so slim that, as a rule, those who are obliged to travel "on time" must be content to use the thousand-mile tickets issued by the railway companies, or the so-called "Higbee ticket," good for five thousand miles over different lines of roads, enabling the traveller on one ticket to go from any point to any point. The passenger pays full rate for his ticket, supplied with coupons, which, in most cases, he must sign in the presence of the conductor every time he boards a train. These coupons, when cancelled, are awarded a rebate by the company issuing the ticket at the rate of ten dollars each thousand miles. While this system involves a certain amount of red tape, it nevertheless saves time in making trains in a rush and during crowded hours.

As to hotels, it is safe to say the best is none too good—not so much from the viewpoint of personal comfort as for the tone it lends to the house the traveller represents. In this respect, however, it may be necessary to compromise with one's dignity and resort to the next best; yet, unless it be "Hobson's choice," that is, if there be only one hotel in the town, it is never wise to put up at what is drastically referred to as a "cheap-and-nasty." In most hotels arrangements may be made for show rooms, so that the traveller is enabled during a stay of several weeks to display his line undisturbed and "room" in another part of the hotel. It is perhaps superfluous to note in this connection that quarters at a hotel should be bespoken on the European plan, and that the "greenhorn" may ask of the clerk at what rates he is being entertained. False modesty in this particular might become expensive, inasmuch as travellers are usually entitled to a favored rate.

When stopping at "Commercials," that is, hotels frequented by commercial travellers, the young traveller, as well as the veteran, often finds opportunities that are offered nowhere else of coming into the closest touch with his colleagues. Indeed in this way friendships are formed that endure a life time. And for this reason we would caution the novice against a too hasty judging of his new-found brethren and against stilted stiffness and cold formality. Among the commercial travellers there are wide divergences of characteristics; there necessarily must be such. Some members of the brotherhood shiver and shudder at the freedom of conversation sometimes carried on by its members after the labors of the day have ceased—men who have no appreciation of humor or wit—to whom the humor of a Sheridan, a Curran, Theodore Hook, Thomas Hood, or the well-known anecdotes of Dr. Abernethy and others, are as a foreign tongue, and associated with distasteful ideas and misunderstood lives. As in the outer world, so in the inner and smaller world of the fraternity of commercial travellers will be found representatives of narrow views, and well-meant but misplaced judgment of the acts and doings of those around them. If an individual does not smoke, there is no necessity for his giving statistics to prove that the money spent for tobacco might do much more good if spent in other directions, which may or may not be true. It all depends upon the point of view. The total abstainer—a good man, and one who often does a great deal of good work—need not be a bore to his fellow travellers. In many cases much good has been done by personal example in right living. But it is dangerous to set up an "Ebenezer" for one's fellow men, in season and out of season. There is danger, as we have said, of such a man becoming a bore; and a bore, no matter how good his intention may be, is a nuisance not tolerated in any company.

* Continuation of the series of "The Profession of Bookselling." A list of authorities quoted will be given on conclusion.

PACKING AND LEAVING HOME.

After making up his route, the traveller turns his attention to packing the samples which he has selected with great care and judgment. In the end he will find that his eyes have been larger than the capacity of his trunks, and that discrimination is needed to get all within the available compass. Books must be packed solidly, and, after laboring for some time, it will often be found that room must be made for still other books that are needed. It may be necessary to pack and repack the trunk several times before all that is needed can be included, and often it may be necessary to carry one or two books in a grip or in the hand. After the traveller has actually started it may take a week or longer to discover just how his samples may be most advantageously stowed away. After that the work of unpacking and packing becomes a mere matter of routine.

At last the time comes for leaving home—for every conscientious man the most trying period of all his work. He passes out to face possible dangers, accidents, sickness and privations, leaving his lonely family day by day anxiously watching his route. In some respects the family left behind by the traveller bears the harder portion of the separation. The traveller is kept busy all the time; he meets many old friends and forms new acquaintances who often smoothe the way for him; whereas those he has left at home miss the companionship of the absent one and are in daily dread of bad news. Of course, the traveller often must endure lonely hours at large hotels and elsewhere en route when, overwhelmed for the time with defeats or bodily ailments, he cannot come into touch with a kindred spirit with whom to exchange confidences. Yet new places and faces help him over the rough places, while those he leaves behind must meet their difficulties under the old surroundings, deprived of the counsel and aid of their breadwinner abroad.

COLLIER'S NOT GUILTY OF LIBEL.

THE sensational trial of the suit for libel brought by Judge Joseph M. Deuel, of the Special Sessions of New York City, against Norman Hapgood, editor of Collier's Weekly, resulted in the acquittal of Hapgood. The jury reached this verdict, practically without deliberation, on January 27. It will be remembered that the action was brought against Collier's by Judge Deuel because of its criticism of the Judge for his connection with the business management of Town Topics while on the bench, in violation of the charter of New York City, which provides that no Justice of the Court of Special Sessions shall "carry on any business, or practice as an attorney or counsellor-at-law in any court in this city," . . . "but each such Justice shall devote his whole time and capacity, so far as the public interest demands, to the duties of his office." The case was conducted on most extraordinary lines, because although it was in form a trial of Mr. Hapgood, it was in reality a trial of Colonel William D. Mann and Justice Joseph M. Deuel for their management of Town Topics. At the conclusion of the trial Colonel Mann was arrested on a warrant charging him, as alleged, with having committed perjury while testifying in the trial. Pending examination Colonel Mann, who denies the allegation, was released on bail, which was fixed at $10,000.

WHO PRINTED THE "CATHOLICON?"

THE annual monograph of the Gutenberg Society, the fourth of the series, published recently, deals with the question as to who printed the James de Balboa "Catholicon," a sort of exposition of the Faith, the two earliest issues of which have usually been attributed to the press of Gutenberg. One of these issues is dated 1460, but both are regarded as books produced by Gutenberg at Mayence after the trouble with Schoeffer had led to an abrupt dissolution of their partnership. Dr. Gottfried Zedler, librarian of the National Library at Wiesbaden, in this monograph deals with the dated issue of the "Catholicon," which has been the subject of considerable controversy. While it is generally supposed to have been printed by Gutenberg a respectable number of authorities, on the other hand, attribute it to another printer, usually to Schoeffer. Dr. Zedler reviews the articles that have been written on the subject of the printing of the "Catholicon," and points out that the majority of modern writers attribute the book to the press of Gutenberg. The epoch-making studies of Schwenke placed the matter on a different footing, as he came to the conclusion that Gutenberg was not the printer. In the opinion of Dr. Zedler, however, the words at the beginning of the concluding paragraph in the "Catholicon" clearly prove, to his mind, that Gutenberg was the author of the type. The words "Altissimi presido . . . Quique numero sepe parvulis reuelat quod sapientibus celat," Dr. Zedler claims, only have sense if the inventor himself is speaking. Gutenberg, following his usual practice, does not advertise himself by name in these lines, as Fust and Schoeffer were wont to do, but leaves it to the reader to discern that this beautiful concluding paragraph can refer only to himself, although he attributes the merit of his invention to a gift of the Almighty. Even if this concluding paragraph did not exist and was not, in the opinion of Dr. Zedler, the most important document left for enabling an idea of the deeply religious and unassuming personality of Gutenberg to be formed, it would be still possible to give him his due. By comparing the "Catholicon" type with contemporary and later type in the fifteenth century, it can be seen that no other letter is equal to it in imitating the artistic missal script of that century, and that it is similar to other work of the Master. Dr. Zedler concludes his pamphlet with an investigation of the technical processes involved in the production of the type, and with a review of the work of Schoeffer, etc., all of which is fully illustrated with facsimiles.

The society's fourth annual report is rather more elaborate than usual, and contains a paper by Heinrich Wallau on the art of Gutenberg, illustrated by reproductions from old engravings, etc. Wallau appears to have no hesitation in concluding that Gutenberg's knowledge of the goldsmith's art would naturally have led him to become, not a xylographer—as some of the opponents of his claim to be considered the first printer have assumed—but a genuine founder of movable types, with which he probably experimented before the middle of the fifteenth century.

THE ARMSTRONG INSURANCE INVESTIGATION REPORT.

THE dissension over the printing of the report of the Armstrong insurance investigating committee came to a head in the New York Senate, on January 25, when Senator Armstrong, the chairman of the investigating committee, introduced a bill appropriating $20,000 for the printing of the report, and Assemblyman Cox introduced the same bill in the Assembly. Senator Armstrong charged that the Brandow Printing Company, the State Printer, had "held up" the report until it could also print a private edition which it expected to sell at $150 a set, thereby making from $60,000 to $100,000 profit, in addition to the appropriation for the work from the State. To block this movement Assemblyman Cox secured a copyright on the report. A. S. Brandow in reply denies that there has ever been any desire on the part of the State Printer to delay the delivery of the work, and that, in order to facilitate it, he made arrangements with a New York printer, at a considerable advance over what the State was obliged to pay him to do the work. As a verification of this statement Mr. Brandow said that the entire testimony is well along toward completion, that five volumes have been completed and that the balance of the testimony will be printed and bound ready for delivery early next week.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE REV. WASHINGTON GLADDEN, author of "Where Does the Sky Begin?" "Witnesses of the Light," "Social Salvation," etc., will be seventy years old on February 11. Mr. Gladden is moderator of the National Council of Congregational Churches.

HILAIRE BELLOC, author of the remarkable study of Danton and a book about Robespierre, has written a "Life of Marie Antoinette," which will shortly be published by Methuen & Co. He has also contributed to The International Quarterly for January, (Fox, Duffield & Co.) a criticism of Taine's so-called scientific method of writing history, illustrating it with Taine's treatment of Danton in his "Origines de la France Contemporaine."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Book-Lovers' Magazine, v. 6, pt. 1, published by Otto Schulze & Co., Edinburgh, will contain an account of "The Signet Library, Edinburgh," by W. K. Dickson; "Notes for a Whistler Bibliography," by T. R. Way and G. R. Dennis; "A Theory of Book Prices," by Alfred W. Pollard; "Mr. Whistler's Names, Addresses and Birthplaces," by S. D. Shallard, and other articles of bookish interest.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

H. K. FLY, who for two years has been with the Bobbs-Merrill Company, has made an engagement to travel for the G. W. Dillingham Company.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have nearly ready for school use an abridged edition of Taine's "Ancien Régime," with notes and vocabulary by Professor W. F. Geise, of the University of Wisconsin.

WILLIAM M. EDWARDS, for years with M. A. Donohue & Co., and well known to the booktrade, has severed his connection with that concern and will in future represent David McKay, of Philadelphia. Mr. Edwards will leave in a short time on a Western trip reaching to the Pacific coast, with a largely-increased line, including many interesting items.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation Nelson Lloyd's "Six Stars," full of quaint humor and vivid character drawing; the fifth and concluding volume of George Santayana's "The Life of Reason," entitled "Reason in Science;" "The Development of Palestine Exploration," wherein Frederick Jones Bliss gives a full account of archaeological research in Syria and Palestine; also, James Hardy Rores's "The Apostolic Age in the Light of Modern Criticism," an able and scholarly book designed for layman or theologian.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY will publish attractive Valentine editions of "Romances of Old France," by Richard Le Gallienne, a companion to "Old Love Stories Retold," and "The Poet, Miss Kate and I," a book by a new author, which made a splendid start in the Christmas season. There will also be continued the Valentine edition of "Old Love Stories Retold." The two new Valentine editions will be put up in most attractive boxes, the covers of which will be a representation of the old fashioned deep, lace valentine, in the centre of which will appear the covers of the books—both landscapes in these cases, and lending themselves admirably to the adaptations. They have in preparation a volume entitled "Folly," by Edith Rickert, whose "Reaper" attracted wide attention a little over a year ago.

J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY call special attention to Ogilvie's Fun Books, of which there are ten numbers, recently taken over from The Arkell Publishing Co.: "A Job Lot of Jokes," "Uncle Sam's Jokes," "Uncle Sam's Joker," "Listen to This," "Foolish House Sayings," "Somethin' Doin'," "Sailors' Yarns," "That Reminds Me," "A Trip to Laughland," "Weber and Fields' Funnyisms," "Roger Brothers in Funville." The books are full of pictures and nonsense of humorous quality, and will no doubt sell rapidly. They are constantly adding to their long list of popular plays, which now contains 79 numbers, and their Comic Post Cards are also selling steadily. This house also has on its list many of Richard Henry Savage's most popular stories as well as several of Nat Gould's, Guy Boothby's and T. W. Hanshaw's.

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY will publish this month a clever automobile story by Mrs. Louise Cosser Hale, entitled "A Motor Car Divorce," with most satisfactory plot and irresistible humor, just the book to read aloud. The author's husband has furnished the 36 pretty landscapes with which the book is illustrated. They also announce for this month "A Lame Dog's Diary," by S. Macnaughton, whose hero is really a soldier who at Magersfontein, during the Boer War, was shot in both legs. His devoted and clever sister devotes herself to cheering his helplessness. A young widow advises him to keep a diary after he tires of wood carving and worsted work, and through this pastime comes the satisfactory climax. Bettina von Hutten's sequel to "Pam," entitled "What Happened to Pam," will be published in April.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on February 15 Upton Sinclair's long expected novel, "The Jungle," a daringly realistic novel of the sordid working and living conditions in Chicago, which appears under the name of Packingtown. The writer spent seven weeks studying the stock yards alone, and he reports the conditions there a menace to the health of the civilized world. The first edition will be very large, and a large edition is also already sold to Australia. The publication of "How to Buy Life Insurance," by "Q. P.," has been postponed until February 23. The book treats a policy as merchandise, and tells customers how to buy intelligently. It will give information not hitherto available in so simple a form. The complete "Dog Book," by James Watson, will not be issued until May 10. It will be in two massive volumes, a worthy companion to "The Poultry Book" of last year.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will publish during the month an authorized vocabulary edition of Ferdinand von Saar's "Die Steinklopfer," edited by Dr. Charles H. Handschin and Professor Edwin C. Roedder, of the University of Wisconsin. This is supposed to be the first "labor" novel published in German literature. Its author is an Austrian, the creator of the Austrian short novel. The story tells of two stonebreakers on the great mountain railway. They have just concluded a contract with the Hon. D. S. Alexander, a New York Congressman from Buffalo, and a member of the Committee on the Judiciary, for "The Political History of New York State." The first two volumes, covering the years 1774-1861, may be expected in the early spring. The author's work is said by competent judges to be not only sound historically, but enriched by highly vivid character studies. Auerbach's "Villa on the Rhine," which took the world by storm forty years ago, continues its steady sale in James Davis's translation, and has just been sent again on its periodical trip to the press.

THE proceedings of the recent Inter-Church Conference on Federation will be published by the Fleming H. Revell Company during the month of March. The report will be a six hundred page volume, with a great many illustrations, and will contain a complete record of the acts, resolutions, committee reports and the text of the addresses. Of these there were about seventy-five, including those from such speakers as Justice Brewer, Dr. Henry van Dyke, Bishops Doane, Galloway and Fowler, John Wanamaker and Judge Grosscup. This alone would make the volume of extraordinary value. The publication of the "Proceedings" is in no sense a private enterprise. It is part of the work of the Conference, designed to extend its influence, and to carry its message to those unable to attend all of its sessions. The details of publication are in charge of a special committee appointed by the Conference Executive Committee, and the manuscripts were prepared and arranged by an editorial committee, of which the Rev. Drs. M. E. Dwight, William H. Roberts, E. B. Sanford, and John B. Devins and W. T. A. Demarest are members.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish on the 8th inst. Otilie A. Liljencrantz's new novel, "Randvar the Songsmith," the basis of which is the legend connected with the old stone mill or tower at Newport, R. I., one of the most interesting landmarks in America, which is supposed to date from 1000 to 1100 A.D., and is thought to mark Norse civilization of the new world. They will shortly issue the initial volume of a series of novelettes to be brought out under the editorship of W. D. Howells and H. M. Alden, the editor of Harper's Magazine, which is to include only the best, the most interesting, and, in the judgment of the editors, the most lasting work of our leading American writers. The title of the first volume is "Their Husband's Wives." They will also publish this month a work entitled "Evolution the Master-Key," by C. W. Saleeby, author of "Cycle of Life," in which the author reviews the progress of the doctrine of evolution since it was first postulated by Herbert Spencer in his "First Principles" over forty years ago, and shows how all the discoveries of the twentieth century, especially that of radium, only make possible to a greater extent the demonstration of this fundamental law.

THE BURROWS PUBLISHING COMPANY, Cleveland, have now ready volume 2 of Elroy McKendree Avery's important "History of the United States," and announce that volumes 3 and 4 will follow at shorter intervals. It has been found necessary to extend the great work to fifteen volumes, the twelve originally planned not being sufficient for the original scope of the work. Those who have already subscribed will receive the fifteen volumes at the price of the original twelve, and new subscribers upon the basis of fifteen volumes will obtain the set at that rate even should it be found necessary to extend the set by another volume yet, that is to sixteen volumes. The publishers are confident that this extension of the work will result in a betterment of the series, because they will be under less necessity of skeletonizing or omitting, and can give the same incomparable treatment to the map and illustrating that has been attained in the early volumes. Another romance of the new South appears in "Stanton White," by Dr. Asa Zadel Hall, presenting the educational and social reform of the South and the intricate difficulties of the race problem, which the story shows must be settled through the North and South if there is to be a practical enduring race uplift.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have regard for times and seasons in offering two dainty giftbooks for Valentine Day remembrances. Ralph Henry Barbour's "An Orchard Princess" is an idyl of young love amid the spring blossoms. It is prettily bound in decorated cloth and enclosed in an ornamented box, while the numerous illustrations in colors with charming marginal designs, are by James Montgomery Flagg. "Miss Cherry Blossom of Tokyo," the Japanese romance by John Luther Long, appears in a lovely new edition. Its nine full-page pictures are in colors, as are also the many smaller Japanese pictures printed in the tints of old Japan. Cherry blossoms decorate the lining papers, the cover is characteristically Japanese and the volume is encased in a tasteful box. This house has also just published a second edition, illustrated, of that exciting tale of politics and love, "The Wife of the Secretary of State," by Ella Middleton Tybout; and will issue immediately a new novel by E. F. Benson entitled "The Angel of Pain," wherein the author tells the story of a great sacrifice for love. It is interesting to note how far away from his "Dodo" period Mr. Benson has come in this book and "The Challoners."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce for immediate publication "From a College Window," a collection of papers that have appeared serially in the Cornhill Magazine, with six additional essays. These papers were written by the anonymous author of "The Upton Letters," who now proves to be Arthur C. Benson, of Magdalen College, formerly master at Eton College, well known for his poetical work, the lives of Tennyson and Rossetti, etc. "From a College Window" is essentially a collection of familiar essays in which the reader is brought again under the spell of the singularly interesting and attractive personality that made itself known in "The Upton Letters." They have also nearly ready in the Crown Theological Library "The History of Early Christian Literature," by Professor Hermann von Soden, translated by the Rev. J. R. Wilkinson, a concise, comprehensive study chiefly of the rich literary heritage which the first two generations of Christians left behind them in the form of the collected books of the New Testament; "The Sacred Cup," an interesting novel, by Vincent Brown, author of "A Magdalen's Husband"; "A Son of the People," a new story by the Baroness Orczy; also, "All That Was Possible," a new novel by Howard Overing Sturgis, author of "Belchamber," with a frontispiece, in colors, by Frederick Simpson Coburn.

JOHN LANE COMPANY, (The Bodley Head,) are publishing this week "The Cleansing of the Lords," by Colonel Frank Graham Wintle, which rests on the passing of an act of Parliament to remove from the House of Lords all peers who have not shown the required efficiency as rulers of their country, and to supply their places with active patriots regardless of their native born rank. The author has opportunity for an amusing but thoughtful picture of English political and social life. A large African ivory trust influences the situation and its consequences. They have also just ready "Selections from the Poetry of John Payne," by Tracy and Lucy Robinson. John Payne is chiefly known as a translator from the Arabic, Persian, Italian and French, his rendering of the "Arabian Nights" and of the poems of Villon being especially famous. His original work, however, was specially commended by Horne, Tennyson, Browning, Rossetti, Swinburne and others of highest rank among the poets. "Lilliput Islands and Innocents' Revels," by W. B. Rands; and "A Year of Songs for a Baby in a Garden," by W. Graham Robertson, are two juveniles in verse, the former edited by R. Brimley Johnson, and both artistically illustrated. The interest of the world in the present conference at Algeiras draws special attention to "The Truth About Morocco: an indictment of the British Foreign Office," by M. Aflalo, with introduction by R. B. Cunningham Graham, which appeared about a year ago. Mr. Aflalo has for many years been connected with the government of Morocco, and he writes with authority of the true motives of France, Germany and England regarding this northwestern corner of Africa.

told," and "The Poet, Miss Kate and I," a book by a new author, which made a splendid start in the Christmas season. There will also be continued the Valentine edition of "Old Love Stories Retold." The two new Valentine editions will be put up in most attractive boxes, the covers of which will be a representation of the old fashioned deep, lace valentine, in the centre of which will appear the covers of the books—both landscapes in these cases, and lending themselves admirably to the adaptations. They have in preparation a volume entitled "Folly," by Edith Rickert, whose "Reaper" attracted wide attention a little over a year ago.

J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY call special attention to Ogilvie's Fun Books, of which there are ten numbers, recently taken over from The Arkell Publishing Co.: "A Job Lot of Jokes," "Uncle Sam's Jokes," "Uncle Sam's Joker," "Listen to This," "Foolish House Sayings," "Somethin' Doin'," "Sailors' Yarns," "That Reminds Me," "A Trip to Laughland," "Weber and Fields' Funnyisms," "Roger Brothers in Funville." The books are full of pictures and nonsense of humorous quality, and will no doubt sell rapidly. They are constantly adding to their long list of popular plays, which now contains 79 numbers, and their Comic Post Cards are also selling steadily. This house also has on its list many of Richard Henry Savage's most popular stories as well as several of Nat Gould's, Guy Boothby's and T. W. Hanshaw's.

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY will publish this month a clever automobile story by Mrs. Louise Cosser Hale, entitled "A Motor Car Divorce," with most satisfactory plot and irresistible humor, just the book to read aloud. The author's husband has furnished the 36 pretty landscapes with which the book is illustrated. They also announce for this month "A Lame Dog's Diary," by S. Macnaughton, whose hero is really a soldier who at Magersfontein, during the Boer War, was shot in both legs. His devoted and clever sister devotes herself to cheering his helplessness. A young widow advises him to keep a diary after he tires of wood carving and worsted work, and through this pastime comes the satisfactory climax. Bettina von Hutten's sequel to "Pam," entitled "What Happened to Pam," will be published in April.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on February 15 Upton Sinclair's long expected novel, "The Jungle," a daringly realistic novel of the sordid working and living conditions in Chicago, which appears under the name of Packingtown. The writer spent seven weeks studying the stock yards alone, and he reports the conditions there a menace to the health of the civilized world. The first edition will be very large, and a large edition is also already sold to Australia. The publication of "How to Buy Life Insurance," by "Q. P.," has been postponed until February 23. The book treats a policy as merchandise, and tells customers how to buy intelligently. It will give information not hitherto available in so simple a form. The complete "Dog Book," by James Watson, will not be issued until May 10. It will be in two massive volumes, a worthy companion to "The Poultry Book" of last year.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will publish during the month an authorized vocabulary edition of Ferdinand von Saar's "Die Steinklopfer," edited by Dr. Charles H. Handschin and Professor Edwin C. Roedder, of the University of Wisconsin. This is supposed to be the first "labor" novel published in German literature. Its author is an Austrian, the creator of the Austrian short novel. The story tells of two stonebreakers on the great mountain railway. They have just concluded a contract with the Hon. D. S. Alexander, a New York Congressman from Buffalo, and a member of the Committee on the Judiciary, for "The Political History of New York State." The first two volumes, covering the years 1774-1861, may be expected in the early spring. The author's work is said by competent judges to be not only sound historically, but enriched by highly vivid character studies. Auerbach's "Villa on the Rhine," which took the world by storm forty years ago, continues its steady sale in James Davis's translation, and has just been sent again on its periodical trip to the press.

THE proceedings of the recent Inter-Church Conference on Federation will be published by the Fleming H. Revell Company during the month of March. The report will be a six hundred page volume, with a great many illustrations, and will contain a complete record of the acts, resolutions, committee reports and the text of the addresses. Of these there were about seventy-five, including those from such speakers as Justice Brewer, Dr. Henry van Dyke, Bishops Doane, Galloway and Fowler, John Wanamaker and Judge Grosscup. This alone would make the volume of extraordinary value. The publication of the "Proceedings" is in no sense a private enterprise. It is part of the work of the Conference, designed to extend its influence, and to carry its message to those unable to attend all of its sessions. The details of publication are in charge of a special committee appointed by the Conference Executive Committee, and the manuscripts were prepared and arranged by an editorial committee, of which the Rev. Drs. M. E. Dwight, William H. Roberts, E. B. Sanford, and John B. Devins and W. T. A. Demarest are members.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish on the 8th inst. Otilie A. Liljencrantz's new novel, "Randvar the Songsmith," the basis of which is the legend connected with the old stone mill or tower at Newport, R. I., one of the most interesting landmarks in America, which is supposed to date from 1000 to 1100 A.D., and is thought to mark Norse civilization of the new world. They will shortly issue the initial volume of a series of novelettes to be brought out under the editorship of W. D. Howells and H. M. Alden, the editor of Harper's Magazine, which is to include only the best, the most interesting, and, in the judgment of the editors, the most lasting work of our leading American writers. The title of the first volume is "Their Husband's Wives." They will also publish this month a work entitled "Evolution the Master-Key," by C. W. Saleeby, author of "Cycle of Life," in which the author reviews the progress of the doctrine of evolution since it was first postulated by Herbert Spencer in his "First Principles" over forty years ago, and shows how all the discoveries of the twentieth century, especially that of radium, only make possible to a greater extent the demonstration of this fundamental law.

THE BURROWS PUBLISHING COMPANY, Cleveland, have now ready volume 2 of Elroy McKendree Avery's important "History of the United States," and announce that volumes 3 and 4 will follow at shorter intervals. It has been found necessary to extend the great work to fifteen volumes, the twelve originally planned not being sufficient for the original scope of the work. Those who have already subscribed will receive the fifteen volumes at the price of the original twelve, and new subscribers upon the basis of fifteen volumes will obtain the set at that rate even should it be found necessary to extend the set by another volume yet, that is to sixteen volumes. The publishers are confident that this extension of the work will result in a betterment of the series, because they will be under less necessity of skeletonizing or omitting, and can give the same incomparable treatment to the map and illustrating that has been attained in the early volumes. Another romance of the new South appears in "Stanton White," by Dr. Asa Zadel Hall, presenting the educational and social reform of the South and the intricate difficulties of the race problem, which the story shows must be settled through the North and South if there is to be a practical enduring race uplift.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have regard for times and seasons in offering two dainty giftbooks for Valentine Day remembrances. Ralph Henry Barbour's "An Orchard Princess" is an idyl of young love amid the spring blossoms. It is prettily bound in decorated cloth and enclosed in an ornamented box, while the numerous illustrations in colors with charming marginal designs, are by James Montgomery Flagg. "Miss Cherry Blossom of Tokyo," the Japanese romance by John Luther Long, appears in a lovely new edition. Its nine full-page pictures are in colors, as are also the many smaller Japanese pictures printed in the tints of old Japan. Cherry blossoms decorate the lining papers, the cover is characteristically Japanese and the volume is encased in a tasteful box. This house has also just published a second edition, illustrated, of that exciting tale of politics and love, "The Wife of the Secretary of State," by Ella Middleton Tybout; and will issue immediately a new novel by E. F. Benson entitled "The Angel of Pain," wherein the author tells the story of a great sacrifice for love. It is interesting to note how far away from his "Dodo" period Mr. Benson has come in this book and "The Challoners."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce for immediate publication "From a College Window," a collection of papers that have appeared serially in the Cornhill Magazine, with six additional essays. These papers were written by the anonymous author of "The Upton Letters," who now proves to be Arthur C. Benson, of Magdalen College, formerly master at Eton College, well known for his poetical work, the lives of Tennyson and Rossetti, etc. "From a College Window" is essentially a collection of familiar essays in which the reader is brought again under the spell of the singularly interesting and attractive personality that made itself known in "The Upton Letters." They have also nearly ready in the Crown Theological Library "The History of Early Christian Literature," by Professor Hermann von Soden, translated by the Rev. J. R. Wilkinson, a concise, comprehensive study chiefly of the rich literary heritage which the first two generations of Christians left behind them in the form of the collected books of the New Testament; "The Sacred Cup," an interesting novel, by Vincent Brown, author of "A Magdalen's Husband"; "A Son of the People," a new story by the Baroness Orczy; also, "All That Was Possible," a new novel by Howard Overing Sturgis, author of "Belchamber," with a frontispiece, in colors, by Frederick Simpson Coburn.

JOHN LANE COMPANY, (The Bodley Head,) are publishing this week "The Cleansing of the Lords," by Colonel Frank Graham Wintle, which rests on the passing of an act of Parliament to remove from the House of Lords all peers who have not shown the required efficiency as rulers of their country, and to supply their places with active patriots regardless of their native born rank. The author has opportunity for an amusing but thoughtful picture of English political and social life. A large African ivory trust influences the situation and its consequences. They have also just ready "Selections from the Poetry of John Payne," by Tracy and Lucy Robinson. John Payne is chiefly known as a translator from the Arabic, Persian, Italian and French, his rendering of the "Arabian Nights" and of the poems of Villon being especially famous. His original work, however, was specially commended by Horne, Tennyson, Browning, Rossetti, Swinburne and others of highest rank among the poets. "Lilliput Islands and Innocents' Revels," by W. B. Rands; and "A Year of Songs for a Baby in a Garden," by W. Graham Robertson, are two juveniles in verse, the former edited by R. Brimley Johnson, and both artistically illustrated. The interest of the world in the present conference at Algeciras draws special attention to "The Truth About Morocco: an indictment of the British Foreign Office," by M. Aflalo, with introduction by R. B. Cunningham Graham, which appeared about a year ago. Mr. Aflalo has for many years been connected with the government of Morocco, and he writes with authority of the true motives of France, Germany and England regarding this northwestern corner of Africa.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

A POPULAR POET

Mr. Edmund Vance Cooke, author of "Chronicles of the Little Tot" and "Rimes to be Read," has the rare gift of being able to reach the hearts of the people. Those who were fortunate enough to hear him at the Booksellers' Dinner in New York claim for him a great success. We have reason to have faith in Mr. Cooke's work, for it has the quality that appeals to the masses. It is original, bright and direct verse of unfailing interest. Few of the modern poets are his equal, and none better.

But what does the public say? Why, we could print pages. Here's one letter from Rev. Bernard Lee—a long one—but worth reading every line:

"DEAR SIRs:

"In reply to yours of January 20th, relative to 'The Chronicles of the Little Tot,' by Edmund Vance Cooke, I must say that not for many a day have I enjoyed such pleasure as that in which I read his beautifully delightful book through.

"My attention was drawn to his book first by Mr. M. J. Lyons, of T. Pillot's store (Houston, Tex.), who showed me the piece called 'The Moo-Cow-Moo.' I came home and the words were ringing in my ears. A few days later he sent me a leaflet with 'The Moo-Cow-Moo' on it. I read it to our school children who were delighted, and on my rounds among my people, did not fail to recite it for the little ones, who are my favorites in every family—I could not resist getting the book—aye, several of them, as many as five—and had not near enough to give my little friends during the holidays. I could not keep a copy while the children were hungry for them.

"Every page of the book is good. It is all so real—so redolent of joy and youth, so childlike, so pure and clean. Such lessons can be taught young and old by it, that I would fain have every 'little tot,' and grown-up folks as well, read it and enjoy it.

"When I go to Houston again I shall see Mr. Cooke's other works, and, no doubt, will be obliged to thank you soon for having referred me to such sources of pleasure and innocent fun.

"Respectfully yours,

"BERNARD LEE."

From [New York] Journal of Commerce,
January 30, 1906.

In the book department of the H. B. Claflin Company extensive buying has been going on by retailers for their "after-inventory clearing-up sales." Books of all kinds where the purchaser sees a good profit are disposed of for these sales. By advantageous buying the department has acquired a big stock of paper-covered novels, standard works, with 100 titles to choose from. These books are disposed of in quantity lots, often as low as 2 cents apiece. The department is making a specialty also of a line of paper-teries in their stationery section on which they control the exclusive rights.

Dainty Gifts for Valentine's Day

An Orchard Princess

By RALPH HENRY BARBOUR

"As a gift to a debutante chum, or to any beloved girl, no book that was ever written could be more acceptable than this story of a lovely young artist whom Love met and wooed in an orchard."

The illustrations, by James Montgomery Flagg, are printed in colors, and dainty designs in tint are on every page. Attractively bound in cloth, in an ornamental box, $2.00.

Miss Cherry-Blossom of Tokyo

By JOHN LUTHER LONG

An especially beautiful edition of this popular novel. It has nine full-page illustrations in colors, and on each page are Japanese pictures printed in the tints of old Japan. The lining papers are decorated with cherry-blossoms; the cover is characteristically Japanese, and the volume encased in an ornamental box. Cloth, $2.50.

JUST PUBLISHED—SECOND EDITION

The Wife of the Secretary of State

By ELLA MIDDLETON TYBOUT

"There is adventure and excitement in every paragraph, and the action is as rapid and fascinating as the most jaded novel reader could require."

Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

TO BE ISSUED IMMEDIATELY

The Angel of Pain

By E. F. BENSON

Mr. Benson, who got so far away from the humorous frivol and sentimentality of "Dodo" in his powerful story, "The Challoners," has gone still further in this, his newest book.

The story of a great sacrifice for love, splendidly told.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO., Philadelphia

KARL GRIER

By LOUIS TRACY

The Arncliffe Puzzle

By GORDON HOLMES

Just as an indication—of the only four novels reviewed in the New York Globe on Saturday, January 27th, one was about “Grier,” one was about “Arncliffe.”

Conspicuously entertaining fiction is the reason these two stand out from the many.

Look them over—you will agree, and to your own profit.
